

I am appalled at what I've read about Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti- John Kerry documentary days before the election. This action is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. It seems to me that the FCC should take a very direct and immediate interest in the matter: Sinclair Broadcasting is not clearly not using the public's airways to serve the public's interest: rather we confront an abuse of corporate power which flies in the face of moral and legal obligations to fairness.
